1. About this document

This document brings together fifty years of men's FIFA World Cup history for ten of the most successful football nations: Argentina, Brazil, England, France, Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Portugal, Spain and Uruguay. Between them, these ten countries have won every World Cup title awarded from 1978 to 2022, and they account for a large share of the knockout-stage matches played in that period.

The document combines narrative text with three large tables. The narrative explains context: how each tournament unfolded, what defined each national team, and which players shaped their eras. The tables hold the structured facts: tournament-by-tournament records, squad lists with player statistics, and match-by-match results. Many questions can only be answered by combining the two, for example "Which country that reached the 2010 final had never won the tournament, and how did it perform in 2014?"

Coverage and scope

- Period: the twelve men's World Cups from Argentina 1978 to Qatar 2022. The 2026 tournament in Canada, Mexico and the United States is not covered.
- Germany: results of West Germany (1978–1990) and unified Germany (1994 onwards) are treated as one team, in line with FIFA's own records.
- Squads: each nation's most recent World Cup squad within the period. That is 2022 for nine teams and 2014 for Italy, which did not qualify for 2018 or 2022.
- Results: every knockout match (round of 16, quarter-final, semi-final, third-place match and final) and every second-group-stage match (used in 1978 and 1982) involving at least one of the ten nations.

Source and conventions

All numbers are derived from the Fjelstul World Cup Database, an open dataset compiled by Joshua C. Fjelstul and released under the CC-BY-SA 4.0 licence. Following FIFA convention, a match decided by a penalty shootout is recorded as a draw in win/draw/loss records, while the team that won the shootout advances. Scores include extra time where it was played. Goal tallies exclude own goals and shootout penalties.

2. Fifty years of the World Cup: how the tournament changed

The World Cup of 1978 was a much smaller event than the one played today. Sixteen teams took part in Argentina, and after a first group stage the eight survivors were split into two second-round groups. The winners of those two groups met in the final, and the runners-up played for third place. There were no semi-finals at all.

Spain 1982 expanded the field to 24 teams but kept a second group stage: twelve teams advanced into four groups of three, whose winners played semi-finals. That tournament also produced the first penalty shootout in World Cup history, when West Germany beat France in the semi-final in Seville after a 3–3 draw.

From Mexico 1986 to USA 1994 the 24-team format used a straight knockout bracket after the groups: the top two teams in each of six groups plus the four best third-placed teams formed a round of 16. France 1998 introduced the 32-team format of eight groups of four, with the top two in each group reaching the round of 16. That structure stayed in place for seven tournaments, through Qatar 2022. The 2026 edition is the first with 48 teams.

Scoring, rules and technology

Scoring has varied widely. Italia 90 was the lowest-scoring World Cup of the period, with 115 goals in 52 matches (about 2.21 per game), a tournament remembered for defensive football. Partly in response, FIFA introduced three points for a win at USA 1994, and the back-pass rule (introduced in 1992) stopped goalkeepers handling deliberate passes from team-mates. Qatar 2022 set a record for a 64-match tournament with 172 goals.

The golden goal was used to settle extra-time knockout matches at France 1998 and Korea/Japan 2002 before being abandoned. Goal-line technology arrived at Brazil 2014, and the Video Assistant Referee (VAR) was used for the first time at Russia 2018. Qatar 2022 added semi-automated offside technology and was the first World Cup played in November and December rather than in the northern summer.

3. Tournament summaries, 1978–2022

Each summary below gives the host nation, the result of the final and the leading scorers, followed by a short account of the tournament. The leading scorers are calculated from goal records in the source dataset, excluding own goals and shootout penalties.

1978 – Argentina

Final: Argentina 3–1 Netherlands (after extra time) · Estadio Monumental, Buenos Aires · 1978-06-25
Leading scorers: Mario Kempes (Argentina) 6; Rob Rensenbrink (Netherlands) 5; Teófilo Cubillas (Peru) 5
Teams: 16 · Matches: 38 · Goals: 102

Hosts Argentina won their first title under coach César Luis Menotti. Needing to beat Peru by four clear goals in their final second-round match to reach the final ahead of Brazil, they won 6–0, a result that is still debated. In the final at the Estadio Monumental they beat the Netherlands 3–1 after extra time, with Mario Kempes scoring twice. Kempes finished as top scorer with six goals. The Dutch lost a second consecutive final, and Brazil finished third without losing a match.

1982 – Spain

Final: Italy 3–1 Germany · Estadio Santiago Bernabéu, Madrid · 1982-07-11
Leading scorers: Paolo Rossi (Italy) 6; Karl-Heinz Rummenigge (Germany) 5; Zbigniew Boniek (Poland) 4
Teams: 24 · Matches: 52 · Goals: 146

Italy started slowly, drawing all three first-round games, then beat Argentina and Brazil in the second group stage. Paolo Rossi, back from a two-year ban, scored a hat-trick in the 3–2 win over Brazil and went on to win both the Golden Boot and the Golden Ball with six goals. The semi-final between West Germany and France in Seville ended 3–3 and produced the first World Cup penalty shootout. In the final at the Santiago Bernabéu, Italy beat West Germany 3–1 with goals from Rossi, Marco Tardelli and Alessandro Altobelli.

1986 – Mexico

Final: Argentina 3–2 Germany · Estadio Azteca, Mexico City · 1986-06-29
Leading scorers: Gary Lineker (England) 6; Diego Maradona (Argentina) 5; Emilio Butragueño (Spain) 5
Teams: 24 · Matches: 52 · Goals: 132

Mexico stepped in as host after Colombia withdrew. This was Diego Maradona's tournament: in the quarter-final against England he scored the "Hand of God" goal and then dribbled past half the England team for a goal later voted the Goal of the Century. Argentina beat West Germany 3–2 in the final at the Estadio Azteca, Jorge Burruchaga scoring the winner after the Germans had come back from 2–0 down. England's Gary Lineker won the Golden Boot with six goals.

1990 – Italy

Final: Germany 1–0 Argentina · Stadio Olimpico, Rome · 1990-07-08
Leading scorers: Salvatore Schillaci (Italy) 6; Tomáš Skuhravý (Czechoslovakia) 5; Gary Lineker (England) 4
Teams: 24 · Matches: 52 · Goals: 115

Italia 90 was remembered for tension more than goals. Salvatore Schillaci, a late addition to Italy's squad, top-scored with six goals, but the hosts went out to Argentina on penalties in Naples. England reached the semi-finals for the first time since 1966 and lost to West Germany on penalties. The final in Rome was a rematch of 1986: West Germany won 1–0 through an 85th-minute Andreas Brehme penalty, giving Franz Beckenbauer the rare double of winning the World Cup as captain (1974) and as coach.

1994 – United States

Final: Brazil 0–0 Italy (after extra time), 3–2 on penalties · Rose Bowl, Pasadena · 1994-07-17
Leading scorers: Oleg Salenko (Russia) 6; Hristo Stoichkov (Bulgaria) 6; Jürgen Klinsmann (Germany) 5

Romário led Brazil and won the Golden Ball. The final at the Rose Bowl in Pasadena between Brazil and Italy finished 0–0 and became the first World Cup final decided on penalties. Roberto Baggio, Italy's star of the tournament, missed the last kick, and Brazil won a record fourth title.

The first 32-team World Cup was won by the hosts. France beat Brazil 3–0 in the final at the new Stade de France, with two headers from Zinedine Zidane and a late goal from Emmanuel Petit. Brazil's Ronaldo had suffered a convulsive fit on the day of the final and played well below his level. Croatia finished third in their first World Cup, and Davor Šuker took the Golden Boot with six goals.

2002 – South Korea & Japan

Final: Germany 0–2 Brazil · International Stadium Yokohama, Yokohama · 2002-06-30

Zinedine Zidane, in his last match, scored a penalty and was then sent off in extra time for headbutting Marco Materazzi. The match ended 1–1, and Italy won the shootout 5–3, Fabio Grosso scoring the decisive kick.

2010 – South Africa

Final: Netherlands 0–1 Spain (after extra time) · Soccer City, Johannesburg · 2010-07-11

Miroslav Klose scored in that match to become the tournament's all-time top scorer with 16 goals. In the final at the Maracanã, Mario Götze scored in the 113th minute to beat Argentina 1–0. Germany became the first European team to win a World Cup held in the Americas. Colombia's James Rodríguez won the Golden Boot with six goals.

France, coached by Didier Deschamps, beat Argentina 4–3 in a memorable round-of-16 match in which 19-year-old Kylian Mbappé scored twice. They then beat Uruguay, Belgium and, in the final in Moscow, Croatia 4–2. England reached the semi-finals, and Harry Kane won the Golden Boot with six goals. Argentina lost their opening game to Saudi Arabia but recovered to win the title. The final at Lusail against France is widely regarded as one of the greatest ever played: Argentina led 2–0, Mbappé scored twice in two minutes, Lionel Messi put Argentina ahead again in extra time, and Mbappé completed a hat-trick to make it 3–3. Argentina won the shootout 4–2. Mbappé won the Golden Boot with eight goals, and Messi won his second Golden Ball.

4. Team profiles

The profiles below summarise each nation's World Cup story over the period. Statistics cover only the 1978–2022 tournaments, while title counts are all-time.

Argentina

Argentina won three titles in this period, each defined by one player: Mario Kempes in 1978, Diego Maradona in 1986 and Lionel Messi in 2022. They also lost finals in 1990 and 2014, both to Germany. They won more penalty shootouts than any other team in the period (six), and two of those wins came in Qatar, against the Netherlands in the quarter-final and France in the final. Lionel Messi has played more World Cup matches than any other player in history and scored 13 World Cup goals, more than any other Argentine.

Brazil

Brazil is the only nation to have played at every World Cup and holds the record of five titles, two of them won in this period (1994 and 2002). The 1982 side of Zico, Sócrates and Falcão is often called the best team never to win the tournament. Ronaldo scored 15 World Cup goals across 1998, 2002 and 2006. Brazil also suffered the heaviest defeat of any team in this document: 7–1 to Germany in the 2014 semi-final on home soil. Since 2002, Brazil has not gone beyond the semi-finals.

They missed the 1978 and 1994 tournaments, reached the semi-finals in 1990 and 2018, and lost three of four shootouts in the period, a record that became a national talking point. Gary Lineker (10 goals) and Harry Kane (8 goals) are their leading World Cup scorers. Under Gareth Southgate England reached the semi-finals in 2018 and the quarter-finals in 2022. Goalkeeper Peter Shilton holds the record for England World Cup appearances.

France also reached the 2006 and 2022 finals, losing both on penalties. Their lows include group-stage exits in 2002 (as holders, without scoring) and 2010. Mbappé scored 12 World Cup goals by the age of 24, including a hat-trick in the 2022 final.

Germany

Germany is the most consistent team of the period: five finals reached as West Germany or Germany (1982, 1986, 1990, 2002, 2014), two titles, and a perfect record in penalty shootouts. Lothar Matthäus played in five World Cups, and Miroslav Klose's 16 goals across 2002–2014 are the all-time World Cup record. Joachim Löw coached the team from 2006 to 2021, winning in 2014. Group-stage exits in 2018 and 2022 ended the long run of deep tournament runs.

Italy

Italy won the 1982 and 2006 tournaments, both built on strong defence: they conceded only two goals in seven matches in 2006. They also reached the 1994 final and finished third at home in 1990 without losing a match. Paolo Rossi, Roberto Baggio and Christian Vieri share the Italian lead in World Cup goals for the period with nine each, and Paolo Maldini made 23 appearances. Italy failed to qualify for both 2018 and 2022, so their most recent squad in this document is from 2014.

Netherlands

The Netherlands has reached three World Cup finals without winning one, more than any other nation. In this period they lost the 1978 and 2010 finals, and they also finished third in 2014 under Louis van Gaal, including a 5–1 win over holders Spain. They missed the 1982, 1986 and 2002 tournaments and also 2018. Arjen Robben, Robin van Persie and Dennis Bergkamp each scored six World Cup goals for the period.

Portugal

Portugal qualified for only one World Cup between 1978 and 1998 (1986) but has played at every tournament since 2002. Their best result in the period is fourth place in 2006, when they beat England on penalties in the quarter-final. Cristiano Ronaldo played at five World Cups (2006–2022) and is the only man to score at five tournaments. Spain

Spain qualified for all twelve tournaments in the period but, until 2010, was known for underperforming. The 2008–2012 generation of Xavi, Iniesta, Casillas and David Villa won Euro 2008, the 2010 World Cup and Euro 2012. Spain lost four of five shootouts in the period, including against Russia in 2018 and against Morocco in 2022, when they failed to score a single penalty. Their 7–0 win over Costa Rica in 2022 is their biggest World Cup victory.

Uruguay

Uruguay won the first World Cup in 1930 and again in 1950, but qualified for only seven of the twelve tournaments in this period. Their revival came in 2010, when Diego Forlán won the Golden Ball and Uruguay finished fourth after a dramatic quarter-final shootout win over Ghana. Luis Suárez (7 goals) and Edinson Cavani (5 goals) led the attack through 2010–2022. Coach Óscar Tabárez led the team in 1990 and again from 2006 to 2021.

5. Table 1 – Tournament-by-tournament record of the ten nations

Table 1 lists the record of each of the ten nations at every World Cup from 1978 to 2022: the host country, the stage reached, matches played (P), wins (W), draws (D), losses (L), goals for (GF) and against (GA), the head coach, and the team's top scorer at that tournament with the number of goals in brackets. "Did not qualify" means the team was not in the final tournament. Shootout results count as draws.

Reading Table 1: Germany's rows include West Germany's results for 1978–1990. In 1978 and 1982 the stage "Second group stage" means the team was eliminated in the second-round groups.

6. Squads and players

World Cup squads have grown over the period, from 22 players in 1978 to 23 from 2002 and 26 at Qatar 2022, where the limit was raised because of the mid-season timing and COVID-19 concerns. Each squad must include at least three goalkeepers.

Table 2, in the next section, lists the most recent squad of each nation within the period. For each player it gives the shirt number, position, date of birth, and their career World Cup statistics up to and including that tournament: the number of tournaments in which they were selected, their total World Cup appearances and goals. Appearances include matches started and matches entered as a substitute.

Key players in the most recent squads

- Argentina (2022): Lionel Messi (captain, Golden Ball 2014 and 2022), Ángel Di María (scored in the 2022 final), Julián Álvarez (four goals in 2022) and goalkeeper Emiliano Martínez (Golden Glove 2022).
- Brazil (2022): Neymar (level with Pelé as Brazil's all-time top scorer at the time), Vinícius Júnior, Casemiro, goalkeeper Alisson and veteran captain Thiago Silva.
- England (2022): Harry Kane (captain, Golden Boot 2018), Jude Bellingham, Bukayo Saka, Declan Rice and goalkeeper Jordan Pickford.
- France (2022): Kylian Mbappé (Golden Boot 2022), Antoine Griezmann, Olivier Giroud (France's all-time top scorer) and captain and goalkeeper Hugo Lloris.
- Germany (2022): Thomas Müller and Manuel Neuer (both 2014 champions), Jamal Musiala, Joshua Kimmich and İlkay Gündoğan.
- Italy (2014): Andrea Pirlo, Gianluigi Buffon (captain, playing his fifth World Cup), Daniele De Rossi, Giorgio Chiellini and Mario Balotelli.
- Netherlands (2022): Virgil van Dijk (captain), Frenkie de Jong, Cody Gakpo (three goals in the 2022 group stage) and Memphis Depay.
- Portugal (2022): Cristiano Ronaldo (fifth World Cup), Bruno Fernandes, Bernardo Silva, Pepe and Gonçalo Ramos (hat-trick against Switzerland).
- Spain (2022): Sergio Busquets (captain), Pedri, Gavi (the youngest scorer at the 2022 tournament), Rodri and Álvaro Morata.
- Uruguay (2022): Luis Suárez and Edinson Cavani (both at their fourth World Cup), Federico Valverde, Darwin Núñez and Diego Godín.

Squad trends

The 2022 squads show the gap between veterans and newcomers. Lionel Messi, Cristiano Ronaldo and Mexico's Guillermo Ochoa were among the few players at a fifth World Cup, while Spain fielded teenagers Gavi and Ansu Fati and Germany started 19-year-old Jamal Musiala. Goalkeepers tend to have the longest World Cup careers, and many third-choice goalkeepers in Table 2 have no appearances at all.

7. Table 2 – Most recent World Cup squads of the ten nations

Positions: GK = goalkeeper, DF = defender, MF = midfielder, FW = forward. "WC tours" counts every World Cup for which the player was selected. "WC apps" and "WC goals" are career totals across all World Cups the player attended, up to the squad year shown.

8. Knockout football and penalty shootouts

In knockout football a single bad afternoon ends a campaign, which is why the ten nations' records in elimination matches differ so much from their overall records. Table 3 lists every knockout and second-group-stage match involving at least one of these teams. Several of the most famous matches in the period were between two of them: Argentina v England in 1986 and 1998, Italy v Germany in the 1982 final and the 2006 semi-final, the Netherlands v Argentina in 1978, 1998, 2014 and 2022, and Argentina v France in 2018 and 2022.

Penalty shootouts

Since the first World Cup shootout in 1982, these ten teams have been involved in many of them. Germany won all four of theirs in the period, and Argentina won six of seven. At the other end, England, Italy and the Netherlands each won only one of four, and Spain lost four of five. Three World Cup finals have been decided on penalties: 1994 (Brazil beat Italy), 2006 (Italy beat France) and 2022 (Argentina beat France).

9. Table 3 – Knockout and second-round match results, 1978–2022

Table 3 lists the matches in chronological order. The score is shown from the first-named (home) team's point of view and includes extra time. "AET" means the match went to extra time; "Pens" gives the shootout score. The "Winner" column names the team that won or advanced, or "Draw" for second-group-stage matches that were drawn.

Using this document for retrieval testing

This document is designed to test RAG systems on mixed content. Questions answerable from text alone include "Who scored the winning goal in the 2010 final?". Questions that need a table include "How many goals did Brazil score at the 2002 World Cup?" (Table 1) or "Which Argentina players in the 2022 squad were born after 1999?" (Table 2). Hybrid questions combine the two, for example "Which Golden Ball winners' teams lost the final of the same tournament, and what was the score?" (Section 10 plus Table 3).
